 Geneva Lake
Conservancy

Wayne Rhode of Walworth, has been an avid birder for over 50 years. His favorite birds are wood warblers, and he particularly enjoys identifying them by ear. During the past decade Wayne has photographed 270 species of birds in the Badger State, including 35 species of warblers. He has also served on the board of directors for the Wisconsin Society for Ornithology, as newsletter editor and field trip chair for the Lakeland Audubon Society, and as president and newsletter editor for Beloit's Ned Hollister Bird Club.

Geneva Lake Conservancy has protected over 2,700 acres of high conservation value land in Walworth County and advocates for the ecological health of our lakes, rivers and watersheds. It is a tax-exempt 501(c)(3) organization and accredited land trust. For information call 262-275-5700 or visit online at www.GenevaLakeConservancy.org
